New York's Little Syria neighborhood was famously home to a vibrant community of writers. More than 100 years later, its legacy remains an inspiration and touchpoint.

Presented by the Arab American National Museum and the Lebanese American University, this event will feature modern-day writers – including Nathalie Handal, Susan Muaddi Darraj and Moustafa Bayoumi – and look back at the era that paved the way. Meet the 2016 Arab American Book Award winners and purchase books for signing. Refreshments and drinks will be provided.
